Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs

Once upon a time, there was a beautiful and kind princess named Snow White. She lived in a big castle. Snow White was always polite, caring, and friendly to everyone she met. People in the kingdom loved her because she had a good heart.

Snow White lived with her stepmother, the Queen. The Queen was not kind like Snow White. She was very jealous and only cared about being the most beautiful person in the land. Every day, the Queen stood in front of her magic mirror and asked, "Mirror, mirror on the wall, who is the fairest of them all?"

For a long time, the mirror always answered, "You are the fairest." But one day, the mirror said, "Snow White is the fairest of them all." The Queen became very angry. She could not believe that someone was more beautiful than her. The Queen decided she wanted Snow White to disappear forever.

Snow White soon found out that the Queen was dangerous. She was scared, so she ran away from the castle and into the deep, dark forest. Snow White walked for a long time. She was tired, hungry, and alone. At last, she saw a small cottage hidden between the trees.

Snow White went inside the cottage. Everything was tiny. There were seven small chairs, seven small plates, and seven little beds. Snow White wondered who lived there. She was so exhausted that she lay down across the beds and fell asleep.

Later that evening, the owners of the cottage came home. They were the seven dwarfs, and they worked in a mine all day. When they entered, they saw that someone had been inside. Then they found Snow White sleeping in their beds.

Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs

When Snow White woke up, she was surprised to see them. The dwarfs spoke kindly, and Snow White told them about the Queen and how she had run away. The dwarfs felt sorry for her. They said she could stay with them as long as she was careful. Snow White was very thankful, and soon she felt safe in their little home.

Snow White helped the dwarfs by cleaning the cottage and cooking meals. The dwarfs became her friends, and they were happy to have her with them. But they warned her, "Do not open the door for strangers."

Back at the castle, the Queen asked her mirror again who was the fairest. The mirror still said Snow White was the fairest. The Queen was furious when she learned Snow White was alive. She made a plan to trick her.

The Queen dressed up like an old woman and carried a shiny red apple. She went to the dwarfs' cottage while they were away. When Snow White opened the door, the Queen offered her the apple. It looked delicious, and Snow White did not know it was poisoned.

Snow White took one bite, and suddenly she fell into a deep sleep. When the dwarfs came home, they found her lying still on the ground. They were heartbroken and very sad. They missed their dear friend.

One day, a prince was riding through the forest and saw Snow White. He thought she was wonderful and hoped she would wake up. Soon, the spell was broken, and Snow White opened her eyes again. The dwarfs were overjoyed.

Snow White was finally safe. The prince promised she would never be harmed again. Snow White thanked the dwarfs for their kindness and friendship. She said goodbye with a smile, and she went on to live a happy life.

And so, Snow White and her friends lived happily ever after.
